Description: Brown Boards that are stained. Spine has been torn to top of Book. Foxing to fore and end pages. Reading pages are clean and tidy. One of the biggest movie stars in the early 1930s was RKO's Ann Harding. She was the acme of cool blonde pulchritude, with her long fair tresses pulled back into a trademark bun and her low, throbbing voice purring those lines of dialog. She was far from being a typical Hollywood Glamour girl flapper. She eschewed the fads of drawn on eyebrows, overpainted lips, and beaded eyelashes. She was a real Lady in the days before Lady became a dirty word.

Real World article(written from a Production point of view). Inside Star Trek: The Real Story is a reference book on the production of Star Trek: The Original Series written from the first-person perspective of the operational decision makers at the time, in this case the producers. Both authors, Herbert Solow and Robert Justman, a studio executive on the first two seasons and a producer on the near entire run respectively, were two of the most important decision makers on the show at the time. The Facsimile of "Advance Information on 1966-67 Programming : Star Trek" (7 p.) inserted between pages 202 and 203. Includes index. "A comprehensive look at the development and life of a television and cultural phenomenon [including] battles with NBC and the internal conflicts with studio executives to the behind-the-scenes decisions about actors and their characters, writers, scripts, directors, budgets, and the endless details of weekly television production."--Jacket. Inside Star Trek -- Theme from Star Trek -- William Shatner meets Captain Kirk -- The origin of Spock - The book Inside Star Trek: The Real Story by Bob Justman and Herbert F. Solow reports that she really got into the weeds as they were shooting the second pilot, "Where No Man Has Gone Before". The studio floor had been changed to rocky terrain covered by sand, which was getting in the camera's dolly tracks and slowing down production. He agreed, and Star Trek welcomed the recurring character of Nurse Christine Chapel. They took it a step further, changing her credit in "The Cage" -- which would later air as part of "The Menagerie" -- to her birth name, M. Leigh Hudec, in the hopes that NBC wouldn't realize that Hudec and Barrett were the same person. Star Trek: The Motion Picture: The Art and Visual Effects. Jeff Bond. 4.8 out of 5 stars 205. Herbert Solow and Robert Justman, two of the principal figures behind the scenes for the making of the original series of Star Trek tell their story, from battles with the network through the processes of casting, writing, and production. Inside Star Trek: The Real Story is a long-overdue memoir of one of the most influential events in television history, offering a unique perspective on the concepts and personalities that have since become international legend.
