The implication for compensation management is that high employee performance followed by a monetary reward will make future high performance more likely. By the same token, high performance not followed by a reward will make it less likely in the future. Employee Compensation. WP 95-04. Group and Organization-Based Variable Pay Dyer and Blancero (1993) also found a strong belief that, in the future, variable pay would be based to a lesser degree on individual performance and to a much greater degree on firm, business unit, and work group performance (see Table 3). The examples in Table 4 are consistent with this expectation. An edition of Compensation Management in a Knowledge-Based World (1997).
