By Thomas T. Perls, Margery Hutter Silver

The Perseus Books Group. Paperback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, Living to 100: Lessons in Living to Your Maximum Potential at Any Age, Thomas T. Perls, Margery Hutter Silver, Centenarians, once a rarity, are the worlds fastest growing age group: there are currently about 50,000 people over 100 in the United States alone, almost three times as many as there were in 1980. Centenarians are setting the gold standard for healthy aging. What can we learn from these pioneers? How can people decades younger apply the centenarians longevity lessons to their own lives? Filled with personal profiles, informational sidebars, and quizzes, Living...

Dr. Nir Barzilai, a geneticist at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York, reports that centenarians are 20 times as likely as the average person to have a long-lived relative. But a Swedish study of identical twins separated at birth and reared apart concluded that only about 20 to 30 percent of longevity is genetically determined. Personally I do not want to live to be a hundred. Because when its your time to die its your time, plus living that long would be hard. Brittany October 20, 2010 11:50 am. I guess it would be alright to live to be one hundred but I would not be able to do anything. I would just be a blob of that could talk. Actually, the idea of living to 100 never seemed appealing to me -- until I read about these active, vital centenarians. Like the nun's study (Aging with Grace), this is a hopeful, optimistic book.
