Description:

A start-to-finish exploration of the field/practicum experience.

The Practicum Companion for Social Work: Integrating Class and Field Work is the ideal companion for the field/practicum experience. Filled with practical applications, in-depth case scenarios, and thought-provoking examples, this comprehensive text integrates theory with practice and guides students through their placement. Using a strengths-based perspective, it reinforces the link between classroom learning, practice behaviors, and competencies. Readers will learn about practice with individuals, families, groups, communities, and organizations within the concepts of planned change, encompassing engagement, assessment, intervention, evaluation, termination, and follow-up.

Every chapter in the Fourth Edition reflects and integrates the core competencies in the 2015 Educational Policy and Accreditation Standards (EPAS) set by the Council on Social Work Education (CSWE). Case scenarios and practice applications are woven throughout each chapter to help students apply their knowledge, skills, and values. Enhanced values and ethics material, detailed learning plans, and additional cultural competence, safety, and humility content help prepare readers for contemporary practice.

Field experience enables social work students to practice skills learned in their coursework and observe professionals at work. Social work field placements give students a leg up in their profession, providing them with practical work experience and practice dealing with challenges and issues they are likely to face on the job. Social work interns also give back to their communities while they hone their skills. During a social work practicum, the student follows and observes a social worker on a limited basis, usually once a week. The student may take on some responsibilities under the close supervision of a trained social worker. A practicum is generally part of a course that requires reporting and reflecting on experiences in the field to combine theory and practice. Practicum (Field Work I, II, & III). Social Service Worker Program students complete practicum placements in community agencies. The program faculty organize the placements after consultation with each student. The weekly placement (4 to 5 hours per week) lasts throughout the school year. After final exams in the Spring term, students begin their five-week full-time block placement in a different agency. Students are expected to learn about the agency, its operations, the community in which it operates, the challenges experienced by the consumers of the services and the methods of helping. By this field work a social worker can make him skilled & expert through interviewing, using theories, methods, techniques in practical arena assuring recoding, responding reporting etc. This includes an accreditation body for social work education such as the council on Social Work Education; a professional organization such as the National Association of Social Workers or a licensing board such as a Board of Behavioral and Social Science Examiners. iii) Although some changes and adjustments in the curriculum have been made, the current curriculum is still not up to an.

While many social work programs are providing some form of group work education in abbreviated segments within other courses, such as a course titled "clinical social work practice with individuals, families, communities, and organizations", the teaching faculty and field placement supervisors do not have specialization in group psychotherapy and it is questionable how much attention is given to group work (Carey, 2016; Goodman & . This depreciation of social work with groups is evidenced by its invisibility in most social work educational programs. In a companion article, the author presents teaching strategies and techniques that assist the instructor in conveying the principles for practice discussed in the present article. View. Aug 22, 2015 Lindsay Allison rated it it was ok · review of another edition. Shelves: textbooks. This book had some good points but overall, the book felt like it was talking to teenagers or kids who had no idea how to actually work with people. It felt very basic and not at all for the level that myself and my classmates are at.
